Teaching Philosophy

I am a firm believer that not every golfer has the same goals in mind or the same athletic ability when taking a golf lesson. Therefore, it is up to the golf instructor to find a way to help each and every student improve their game no matter what their ability. During a student's interview, I like to learn as much as I can about you - your handicap, age, and length of time playing golf, strengths and weaknesses of your game, as well as any physical restrictions you may have. Our goal as instructor and student is to build upon the individual's strengths, while gradually making swing improvements, remembering that our number one goal, whether taking an individual lesson or attending a clinic, is to have fun.
